

this should not be allowed, this will only create more problems for the airline crews to work with. they have enough to worry about with security/terriosts as it is. now they need to worry about policing cell phone usage/manners on a plane. just think what it will be like on a flight that goes all night and people are trying to sleep and you have someone yelling on their phone so they can be heard. it is only asking for more air rage problems.